

Verbatim

"Before we were married all she saw was a guy who lost his job, so I said on the phone one day, 'I don't want you to think I'm a loser.' I then told her, 'I'm going to start my own business.' "

Bryan Winter, owner of the Intricate Lines graphics company in Natick.

Source: MetroWest Daily News

"He walked right through the metal detector and bowed to me. It was an amazing experience."

Michael J. White, of Westborough, on having the Dalai Lama walk through a metal detector made by his company, Security Detection Inc.

Source: MetroWest Daily News

"Alternative energy became very popular this year. There's more momentum toward companies like American Superconductor and Evergreen Solar and the hope is that they can get some wind in their sails, but neither one has turned a profit yet."

Gary H. Sherr, vice president of Carl P. Sherr investment advisory group in Worcester.

Source: Telegram & Gazette

"A billion dollars is lot of money in an economy where there is not a lot of money to spend."

State Rep. Daniel Bosley, D-North Adams, chairman of the house economic development committee, on skepticism about Gov. Deval Patrick's proposed $1 billion biotechnology bill on the part of legislators.

Source: Boston Globe

"It's just an abundance of the most ridiculous misstatements and lies you've ever heard. In the end the court will decide, and I'm sure it will be OK, because it's just the most outlandish things."

David G. "Duddie" Massad on racketeering and other charges brought against him by former business associate and local developer Nicholas Fiorillo.

Source: Telegram & Gazette

